The West meets
the East

The beginning of the 21st century marks a decisive turning point in the public's awareness of perfumes and smell in a general sense. From now on, the perfume will not only be a component of our image but a travel companion for our dreamlike escapades, an exalter of our moods, a catalyst for social relations.

The brand Sandal & Rose Oud wants to retrace those that were the Way of the East and the Silk Road, routes through which were imported oils and spices in Europe, among the most famous are the Arabian Rose and the Eastern Sandalwood.

Master Perfumers and Cosmetologists undertook to analyze the mechanisms of olfactory perception in humans and challenged themselves in the development of new forms of olfaction, raising this value to its primordial rank of nobility.

Today more than ever, contemporary Perfumery offers the spectacle of a real profusion of innovations, which has not only been able to preserve its magical power but, through time and space, has become the interpreter of cultures, traditions and fashions olfactory of every continent, enclosing them in global creations. The Sandal & Rose Oud Line acts as a witness not only thanks to its perfumes but also to the "Bottle", amber in color recalling those hot earths and writing on the label that brings to mind that typewriter calligraphy used in first laboratories of European perfumeries.

The Middle East is the land of the "essences" par excellence, the Arabian Rose one of the most popular perfumes in the Arab world, makes its arrival in Europe in the 13th century with the end of the Crusades. Rose water was initially used to perfume the rooms of the house or as a perfume for the body, finding a subsequent space also in literature and poetry.

The East is "discovered" by the Europeans thanks to "il Milione", the famous work of Marco Polo, where he speaks of unknown civilizations from fabulous treasures, rich in products sought after by western merchants, such as aromas and spices. Among these aromas we find the Sandalwood, with harmonizing and aphrodisiac features that arrives in European perfumeries. Appearance begins to play a more important role than cleansing itself. The 16th century marks the beginning of the fragrant class. Essences play a fundamental role in hygiene and personal care, playing a fundamental role in human psychology, improving awareness and self-confidence.

The world of perfumery has thus discovered the qualities and characteristics of new oils and spices, mixing them together to find a perfect match. In our case this balance is given by the Sandal and the Rose that alternating in products for body hygiene transport you and envelop you in a storm of emotions and warm flavors thanks to their purity and naturalness while maintaining the fragrant body for a long time.
